Dean's list, 3.85 GPA, Thesis Project: The Grapes of Wrath

B.A., Theatre, University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, AL, 1988

Teaching Experience:

ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR OF THEATRE, Coastal Carolina University, current position.

ADJUNCT FACULTY MEMBER, Point Park University, Pittsburgh, PA: Lighting Design II, 2012.

ADJUNCT FACULTY MEMBER, Fairmont State University, Fairmont, WV: Lighting Design I and Advanced Lighting Design, 2011-2012.

Courses Taught:

THEA 356 – Lighting Design:

Introduces students to the concepts and methods to create theatrical lighting design. This project-based course focuses on translating text-based themes into realized lighting designs. Emphasis is given to communication of ideas visually, verbally, and in written form. Design projects include collaboration with art department sculpture installation at Brookgreen Garden's and Rock and Roll project.

THEA 456 – Advanced Lighting Design:

This is open to BFA students and concentrates on professional design process and lighting design beyond traditional theatre. Students use previsualization software to design and program a concert tour, an architectural lighting design, and present a light as art project. Students prepare for the business aspects of a professional career.

THEA 348 – Digital Design for Live Entertainment:

This course introduces students to projections and digital media for theatrical production. Students evaluate physical and equipment challenges and potential to support text-base theme with projected images. Original content is created with DSL cameras, edited with Adobe Photoshop and After Effects, and presented on both QLab 4 and WatchOut media servers.

THEA 359 – Special Topics in Theatre:

This course is specifically open ended to provide students with unique opportunities and allow new course offering before adding them to the curriculum. Advanced Stagecraft, Advanced Lighting Design and Introduction to Technology were all initially taught as special topics. Other topics include projects developing campus light sculptures, interactive lighting displays, 3D projection mapping, and installation of Brookgreen Gardens lighting display created by Bruce Munro, Spring 2020.

THEA 347 – Principles of Sound Design:

This course is open to all students and introduces the concepts and tools used to create an original theatrical sound design. Students create and record sound effects, edit them with Audacity, and design playback with QLab 4.

THEA 497 – Theatre Capstone:

This course is open to all BFA design students. Individual students are mentored and prepared for a professional career in design and technology. Emphasis is on their Capstone Project and portfolio.

THEA 452 – Projects in Design:

This course is open to all BFA students as a mentor design practicum. Students complete mainstage design assignments in costume, lighting, sound, scenic or projection design. Emphasis is placed on professional design standards and presentation.

THEA 346 – Advanced Stage Craft:

This Course is open to BFA students and explores the practical application and use of stage rigging, automation, system integration, and 3D printing. Emphasis is placed on safety and appropriate rigging skills.

THEA 255 – Computer Aided Drafting and Design:

This course is open to all students and introduces student to 2D and 3D drafting tools and techniques. This project-based course uses Sketch Up and VectorWorks for students to create virtual models and scale drawings.

THEA 153 – Introduction to Theatre Technology:

This is open to all students across the university and provides foundational skills in the installation and operations of stage lighting, sound, and projection systems. Practical exercises and classroom lectures introduce students to electrical circuits, load calculations, and data distribution.

THEA 220 – Theatre Laboratory:

This course is a mentored practicum where students complete production and run crew assignments.
